

Visibility on the Internet:

I'm not a big user of social networks, I just have a Discord account with a pseudonym, and a YouTube account in my name that I use to surf and record playlists, but I haven't posted any videos or comments with. I have a separate YouTube channel with a pseudonym to publish videos, but this is still very rare.

Otherwise, I use two email addresses, a «pro» in my name, and my old e-mail address for less important things, like when I have to register on a site not very important. I always use a pseudonym when I can. Sometimes I use a website called Temp mail to sign up for websites where I'm asked to create an account, where I don't necessarily want to leave personal data there if it's just to use it once.

I sometimes google my name, there's only the results of my Bachelor's degree, and a photo in a newspaper article that talks about our mini-company in highschool.
